Introduction

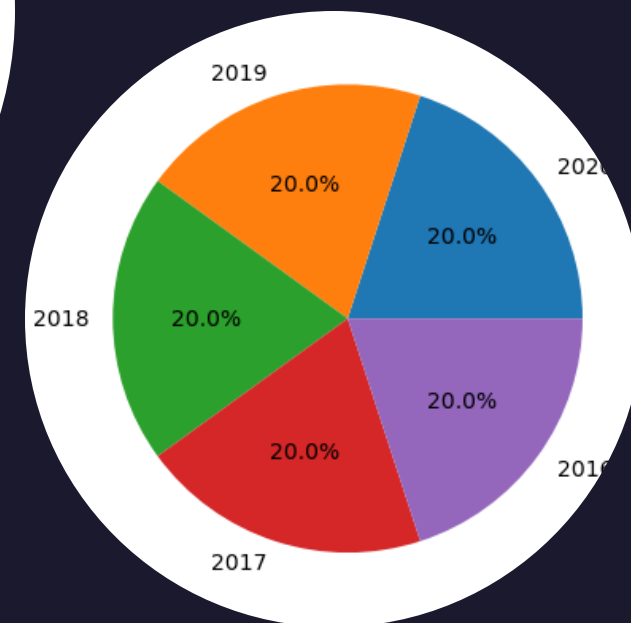

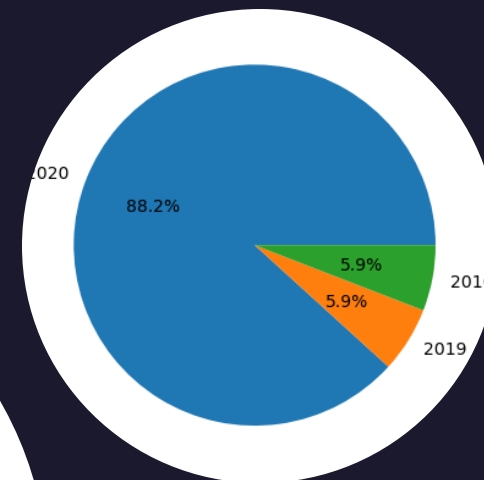

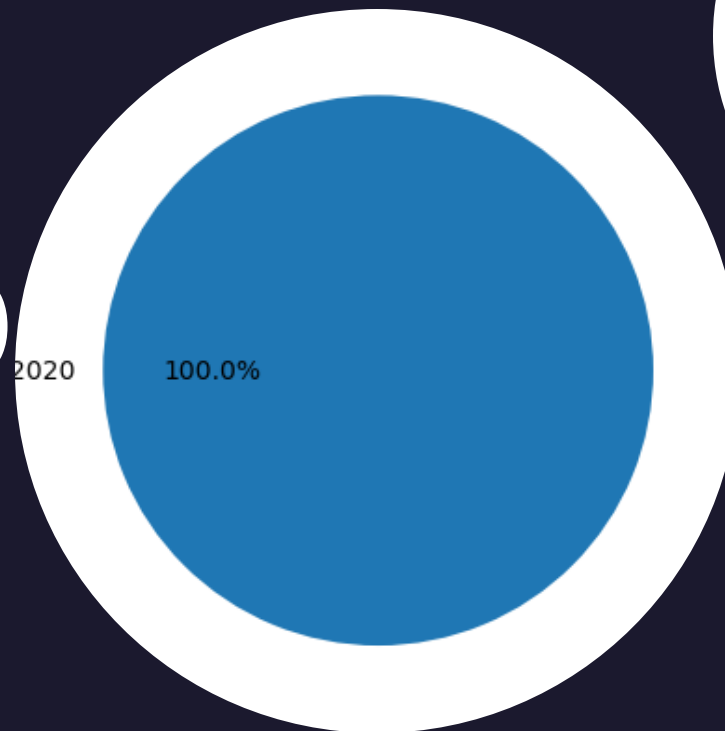

- The COVID-19 pandemic, which began in late 2019 and rapidly spread across the globe in 2020, has had an unprecedented and profound impact on the aviation industry. Airports, which serve as critical hubs for international and domestic travel, have been among the hardest-hit sectors, experiencing dramatic changes in passenger traffic, operational disruptions, and financial losses. The pandemic brought air travel to a virtual standstill, with countries closing borders, imposing lockdowns, and advising against non-essential travel to curb the spread of the virus.
